How to Fix

- Active Debug Code - Debug mode enabled in ASP.NET project configuration
- Authentication.Credentials.Unprotected - Secrets: Hardcoded credentials detected
- Authentication.Credentials.Unprotected - Secrets: Hardcoded Google Secrets detected
- Cleartext Transmission of Sensitive Information - Use of deprecated security protocols (TLS)
- Cross-Site Scripting - Request validation set to false in ASP.NET project configuration
- Cross-Site Scripting - Embedded PHP variable detected
- Cross-Site Scripting - Potential insertAdjacentHtml XSS detected in JavaScript Code
- Cryptography.InsecureAlgorithm - Insecure Configuration of Weak Hash Used
- Cryptography.InsecureAlgorithm - Weak cipher algorithm detected
- Cryptography.NonStandard - Weak cryptographic key size algorithm is detected
- ErrorHandling.RevealDetails.Message - Custom errors disabled in ASP.NET project configuration
- Injection - Use of insecure deserialization type
- Injection - Possible improper XmlSerializer deserialization detected
- Open Source Component
- Reflected Cross Site Scripting - Insecure Use of InnerHTML or OuterHTML
- Reflected Cross Site Scripting - JQuery HTML Function Use
- Sensitive API Requires Logging - Insufficient logging
- SQL Injection - Potential SQL injection is detected
- SQL Injection - Potentially hazardous query detected: variable substitution in-line with query text
- Validation Required - HTTP request validation is disabled

Issue 2 of 4 - Details

Name: CVE-2021-21252

Description: The jQuery Validation Plugin provides drop-in validation for your existing forms. It is published as an npm package "jquery-validation". jquery-validation before version 1.19.3 contains one or more regular expressions that are vulnerable to ReDoS (Regular Expression Denial of Service). This is fixed in 1.19.3.

Resolution: Upgrade package to version greater than or equal to 1.19.3

Issue 6 of 8 - Details

Name: CVE-2020-11023

Description: In jQuery versions greater than or equal to 1.0.3 and before 3.5.0, passing HTML containing <option> elements from untrusted sources - even after sanitizing it - to one of jQuery's DOM manipulation methods (i.e. .html(), .append(), and others) may execute untrusted code. This problem is patched in jQuery 3.5.0.

Resolution: Upgrade package to version greater than or equal to 3.5.0

Issue 1 of 7 - Details

Name: CVE-2021-41184

Description: jQuery-UI is the official jQuery user interface library. Prior to version 1.13.0, accepting the value of the `of` option of the `.position()` util from untrusted sources may execute untrusted code. The issue is fixed in jQuery UI 1.13.0. Any string value passed to the `of` option is now treated as a CSS selector. A workaround is to not accept the value of the `of` option from untrusted sources.

Issue 2 of 7 - Details

Name: CVE-2022-31160

Description:	jQuery UI is a curated set of user interface interactions, effects, widgets, and themes built on top of jQuery. Versions prior to 1.13.2 are potentially vulnerable to cross-site scripting. Initializing a checkboxradio widget on an input enclosed within a label makes that parent label contents considered as the input label. Calling `.checkboxradio( "refresh" )` on such a widget and the initial HTML contained encoded HTML entities will make them erroneously get decoded. This can lead to potentially executing JavaScript code. The bug has been patched in jQuery UI 1.13.2. To remediate the issue, someone who can change the initial HTML can wrap all the non-input contents of the `label` in a `span`.
Resolution:	Upgrade package to version greater than or equal to 1.13.2

How to Fix

H Active Debug Code - Debug mode enabled in ASP.NET project configuration

Cause

Enabling debug mode in an ASP.NET project configuration can lead to information disclosure and other security risks. Avoid setting the debug attribute to true in the compilation element in production environments.

Fix recommendation

Ensure that the debug attribute is set to false in the compilation element for production environments.

H Authentication.Credentials.Unprotected - Secrets: Hardcoded credentials detected

Cause

Hardcoded credentials, such as usernames, passwords, and API Keys are a common security vulnerability. When credentials are hardcoded into an application's source code, they can be exposed to anyone who has access to the code, leading to unauthorized access and data breaches.
Hardcoded credentials pose several risks:
Exposure of sensitive information: If the source code is exposed, either through a repository leak or a simple oversight, anyone can see and use these credentials.
Lack of flexibility: Hardcoded credentials can't be changed without modifying the source code. This makes it difficult to rotate, revoke, or update credentials.
Non-compliance: Many industry regulations and standards require proper management of sensitive information, including credentials.

Fix recommendation

Instead of hardcoding credentials in the source code, consider these alternatives:

Environment variables

Environment variables are a secure way to store sensitive information. They are set in the environment in which the application runs and can be accessed programmatically.

User input

For applications that interact with users, consider prompting for credentials at runtime.

Secure credential storage

Use secure storage solutions like AWS Secrets Manager, Azure Key Vault, or HashiCorp Vault. These tools store credentials securely and provide them to your application as needed.

Configuration files

Store credentials in a configuration file that is not included in the source code repository. Make sure this file is encrypted and protected with appropriate file system permissions.

H Authentication.Credentials.Unprotected - Secrets: Hardcoded Google Secrets detected

Cause

Hardcoded credentials/secrets such as private key IDs, API keys have been detected. Revealing such sensitive information in plain text could be dangerous.

Fix recommendation

Do note include hardcoded secrets/keys in the source code. Google secrets should use the Google Cloud Secret Manager.

H Cleartext Transmission of Sensitive Information - Use of deprecated security protocols (TLS)

Cause

Transport Layer Security (TLS) secures communication between computers in the network. However, older protocol versions like SSLv3 or TLS 1.1 of TLS are less secure than TLS 1.2 and TLS 1.3 and are more likely to have new vulnerabilities. Supporting a deprecated version of TLS protocol makes your application vulnerable.
Deprecated versions are:
* SslProtocols.Ssl2
* SslProtocols.Ssl3
* SslProtocols.Tls
* SslProtocols.Tls11
* SecurityProtocolType.Ssl3
* SecurityProtocolType.Tls
* SecurityProtocolType.Tls11

public class Example
{
    public void TestMethod()
    {
  //violation
        ServicePointManager.SecurityProtocol = SecurityProtocolType.Tls11 | SecurityProtocolType.Tls12 | SecurityProtocolType.Tls13;

  //violation
        SslProtocols sslProtocols = (SslProtocols) 768;  //TLS 1.1

}
```

Fix recommendation

Use only secure TLS version (SecurityProtocolType.Tls11 and SecurityProtocolType.Tls13) in the code.

Do not specify the TLS version in the code. Configure your code to let the OS decide on the TLS version.

public class Example
{
    public void TestMethod()
    {
        ServicePointManager.SecurityProtocol = SecurityProtocolType.Tls12 | SecurityProtocolType.Tls13;
  //Or remove the above line and let the operating system decide what TLS protocol version to use.

  //Set SslProtocols.None so that it will let the operating system decide what TLS protocol version to use.
  SslProtocols sslProtocols = SslProtocols.None;
    }
}

H Cross-Site Scripting - Request validation set to false in ASP.NET project configuration

Cause

Request validation is a feature in ASP.NET that examines HTTP requests and determines whether they contain potentially dangerous content.
Disabling validateRequest by setting it to false could lead to potential dangerous attacks.

<pages validateRequest="false" /%>

Fix recommendation

Avoid setting validateRequest to false. By default, the value of validateRequest is true.

<pages validateRequest="true" /%>
```

H Cross-Site Scripting - Embedded PHP variable detected

Cause

There is evidence of variables embedded in a string to be used in an HTML page. This is dangerous with data from untrusted sources. This vulnerability arises when untrusted user input is directly embedded into HTML without proper sanitization or escaping, allowing an attacker to inject and execute malicious scripts in the context of the user's browser.

Fix recommendation

Avoid allowing certain characters which could lead to an XSS style attack. The main characters of concern for this context are <, >, &, ' and ". Disallowing or escaping these characters mitigates most forms of attack through embedded variables. The htmlspecialchars function escapes these characters using the default flags and settings.

Go to Table of Contents

H Cross-Site Scripting - Potential insertAdjacentHtml XSS detected in JavaScript Code

Cause

The insertAdjacentHTML() method of the Element interface parses the specified text as HTML or XML and inserts the resulting nodes into the DOM tree at a specified position. If the content being inserted using insertAdjacentHTML comes from user input without proper sanitization, it can allow an attacker to inject malicious scripts or HTML tags.

Fix recommendation

To mitigate XSS vulnerabilities in the context of element.insertAdjacentHTML:

Sanitize User Input: Before using user input as part of the HTML content, ensure it is properly sanitized to remove or escape any potentially harmful characters or tags. Use appropriate sanitization libraries or frameworks to prevent script injection.

Validate and Restrict Input: Validate and restrict user input to ensure it conforms to expected patterns or allowed characters. This can prevent the injection of malicious scripts or tags.

Use Server-Side Validation: Don't rely solely on client-side validation. Perform server-side validation to ensure the integrity and safety of user input.

H Cryptography.InsecureAlgorithm - Insecure Configuration of Weak Hash Used

Cause

The detected NodeJS code contains a createHash method using a weak hash algorithm. An attacker may be able to determine the password or other key used and compromise the integrity that system is intended to preserve.

var crypto = require('crypto');

var hash = crypto.createHash('md5').update('braitsch').digest('hex');
var hash = crypto.createHash('sha1').update('braitsch').digest('hex');
```

Fix recommendation

Ensure any XSS protection filter middleware is configured correctly and properly enabled.

var crypto = require('crypto');
```

var crypto = require('crypto');

var hash = crypto.createHash('sha256').update('braitsch').digest('hex');
```

H Cryptography.InsecureAlgorithm - Weak cipher algorithm detected

Cause

Some cryptographic systems are weak by nature and not sufficiently robust against attacks like meet-in-the-middle and related-key attacks.
Avoid the use of weak algorithms like Triple DES, DES and RC2 in our code. Use only cipher algorithms intensively tested and promoted by the cryptographic community.

var tripleDES1 = new TripleDESCryptoServiceProvider(); // Noncompliant: Triple DES is vulnerable to meet-in-the-middle attack var simpleDES = new DESCryptoServiceProvider(); // Noncompliant: DES works with 56-bit keys allow attacks via exhaustive search var RC2 = new RC2CryptoServiceProvider(); // Noncompliant: RC2 is vulnerable to a related-key attack

Fix recommendation

AES is a strong cipher algorithm and the best alternative for DES and RC2 algorithms.

var AES = new AesCryptoServiceProvider(); // Compliant
```

H Cryptography.NonStandard - Weak cryptographic key size algorithm is detected

Cause

Most cryptographic systems require a sufficient key size to be robust against brute-force attacks.
Especially for DSA and RSA, if the key size is below 2048, they are not considered secured. Some old APIs have the default key size as 1024 which cannot be upgraded to 2048 even if we explicitly override that value.

static void Main()
    var dsa1 = new DSACryptoServiceProvider(); // Noncompliant - default key size is 1024 dsa1.key size = 2048; // Noncompliant - the setter does not update the underlying key size for the DSACryptoServiceProvider class var dsa2 = new DSACryptoServiceProvider(2048); // Noncompliant - cannot create DSACryptoServiceProvider with a key size bigger than 1024

    var rsa1 = new RSACryptoServiceProvider(); // Noncompliant - default key size is 1024 rsa1.key size = 2048; // Noncompliant - the setter does not update the underlying key size for the RSACryptoServiceProvider class

    var rsa2 = new RSACng(1024); // Noncompliant

    // ...
}

Fix recommendation

Use the APIs which have the default key size as 2048 and make sure that overriding of key size to any value less than 2048 is not be done.

static void Main()
    var dsa1 = new DSACng(); // Compliant - default key size is 2048 var dsa2 = new DSACng(2048); // Compliant var rsa1 = new RSACryptoServiceProvider(2048); // Compliant

H ErrorHandling.RevealDetails.Message - Custom errors disabled in ASP.NET project configuration

Cause

The `mode` attribute of the `customErrors` element in the web.config file is set to `RemoteOnly` or `Off`. When you disable custom errors in ASP.NET, it provides a detailed error message to clients by default. Debugging should NOT be enabled on a production server. With mode="RemoteOnly" setting, detailed ASP.NET error messages display only if the user accessing the page is browsing from the local server (127.0.0.1 or local host). Although safe in most cases, this could be exploited if the attacker relays a request through a web page or service hosted on the local computer, such as an ASP.NET page that fetches arbitrary web pages to which the attacker is able to make a request: http://127.0.0.1/getpage.aspx?page=http://127.0.0.1/targetPageThatThrowsError.aspx.

<configuration>
 <system.web>
  <customErrors  mode="RemoteOnly" />
 </system.web>
</configuration>

Fix recommendation

The `mode` attribute of the `customErrors` element in the web.config file should be set to `On`. Additionally, the `defaultRedirect` attribute can be set to redirect a user to an appropriate error page.

<configuration>
 <system.web>
  <customErrors  mode="On" defaultRedirect="/apperrorpage.htm" />
 </system.web>
</configuration>
```

H Injection - Use of insecure deserialization type

Cause

Serialization is a mechanism of converting the state of an object into a byte stream. Deserialization is the reverse process where the byte stream is used to recreate the actual object in memory. During the deserialization process, the state of an object is reconstructed from the serialized data. If the serialized data is from untrusted source, it is vulnerable. An attacker may leverage these vulnerabilities to cause a denial of service (DoS).
C# provides different inbuilt types to perform serialization. Some of them are very old and do not consider these vulnerabilities. Serializers like BinaryFormatter, SoapFormatter, NetDataContractSerializer, LosFormatter and ObjectStateFormatter are unsafe to use.

input = GetStreamFromUntrustedSource();
BinaryFormatter formatter = new BinaryFormatter();
data = (string) formatter.Deserialize(input);
```

Fix recommendation

Ensure input is from a trusted source. C# offers several in-box serializers that can handle untrusted data safely:

XmlSerializer and DataContractSerializer for XML

BinaryReader and BinaryWriter for XML and JSON.

```
input = GetStreamFromUntrustedSource();
BinaryReader reader = new BinaryReader(input)
data = reader.ReadString();
```

External references

Go to Table of Contents

H Injection - Possible improper XmlSerializer deserialization detected

Cause

Deserialization based on user-supplied data could result in two types of attacks:
Remote code execution attacks, where the structure of the serialized data is changed to modify the behavior of the object being unserialized.
Parameter tampering attacks, where data is modified to escalate privileges or change for example quantity or price of products.

void my function(string typename)
{
   SerializableClass obj = null;
   Type t = Type.GetType(typeName); // typeName is user-controlled variable XmlSerializer serializer = new XmlSerializer(t); // Noncompliant
    obj = (SerializableClass) serializer.Deserialize(fs);
}

Fix recommendation

The best way to protect against deserialization attacks is to challenge the use of the deserialization mechanism in the application. Use the corresponding class/object type casting in the constructor of the serializer.

SerializableClass sc = new SerializableClass(); XmlSerializer ser = new XmlSerializer(typeof(SerializableClass)); // compliant
 obj = (SerializableClass) serializer.Deserialize(fs);
```

H Reflected Cross Site Scripting - Insecure Use of InnerHTML or OuterHTML

Cause

Content being passed into the `InnerHTML()` or `OuterHTML()` methods should be checked for tainted data. Since this data is further used to insert text, HyperText Markup Language (HTML), and/or script inside of a page, steps should be taken towards validating this data.
Content inputted to the `InnerHTML()` or `OuterHTML()` methods should not be trusted without further validation. Using such content without validation can lead to a variety of Cross Site Scripting and HTML Injection attacks.

<script language="javascript">
...
  var par = <%request.getParameter("param1")%>;
  document.getElementById('div1').innerHtml = par;
...
</script>

Fix recommendation

It is recommended that all `InnerHTML()` or `OuterHTML()` methods be replaced with `InnerText()` or `OuterText()` methods. These methods simply write the data as plain text to the browser without rendering HTML or script.

If the `InnerHTML()` or `OuterHTML()` methods are necessary, further validation on the input is recommended.

Validation of such content when it is exposed to the user should be performed in the same manner as server-side input validation. Input validation should not be solely performed by client-side JavaScript components exposed to the user. Validation implemented in this manner can be bypassed by means of manipulating the browser and/or the submitted request. Use Server-Side validation or a combination of Client-Side and Server-Side validation.

Furthermore, any unnecessary content should not be passed to these methods.

<script language="javascript">
```

<script language="javascript">
...
  var par = <%request.getEncodedParameter("param1")%>;
  document.getElementById('div1').innerText = par;
...
</script>
```

Additionally, you can add JavaScript that performs whitelist validation on the input data:

<script language="javascript">
...
  var par = document.URL;
  if (inText.match(/^[a-zA-Z0-9]$/))   // Only allow alpha-numeric data
  {
    document.getElementById('div1').innerText = par;
  }
...
</script>
```

H Reflected Cross Site Scripting - JQuery HTML Function Use

Cause

Content being passed into the `html()` setter method should be checked for tainted data. Since this data is further used to insert text, HyperText Markup Language (HTML), and/or script inside of a page, steps should be taken towards validating this data.
Content inputted to the `html()` setter method should not be trusted without further validation. Using such content without validation can lead to a variety of Cross Site Scripting and HTML Injection attacks.

  $('div1').html = par;
...
</script>

Fix recommendation

It is recommended that all `html()` setter methods be replaced with `text()` setter methods. These methods simply write the data as plain text to the browser without rendering HTML or script.

<script language="javascript">
...
  $.post('ThirdPartyWebService.php', function(data){
    $('div1').text = data;
  });
...
</script>
```

If the `html()` setter methods are necessary, further validation on the input is recommended.

Input validation should not be solely performed by client-side JavaScript components exposed to the user. M Sensitive API Requires Logging - Insufficient logging

Cause

Ignoring unexpected exceptions is bad practice since the exception might be due to malicious activity by an attacker. Attackers rely on the lack of monitoring and timely response to achieve their goals without being detected. A developer can use very specific exception to validate different data. However, they should avoid using generic exceptions to catch the exception in such situations.
For example, the following code tries to read a configuration file if it exists. It uses a generic exception type in the catch block to handle all exceptions and ignores them without logging the details. An attacker might be trying to modify the configuration file with malicious content which can make the application vulnerable and with insufficient login, it may not be noticed.

try
{
   ReadConfigurationFile(fileName);
}
catch (Exception exc)
{
 //ignore if file not found
}
```

Fix recommendation

Log all exceptions and errors. If exceptions are very specific and expected, use the corresponding exception type instead of a generic exception.

try
{
   ReadConfigurationFile(fileName);
}
catch (FileNotFoundException exc)
{
 //ignore if file not found.
}
catch (ParseException exc)
{
 Log(exc)
}
```

H SQL Injection - Potential SQL injection is detected

Cause

SQL injection is a well-known problem even outside the C-sharp programming language. Be careful when constructing queries in C-sharp to avoid SQL injection.
Always consider user parameters or user variables untrusted and tainted. Constructing SQL queries directly from tainted data enables attackers to inject a query with a completely different meaning. Successful database query injection attacks can read, modify, or delete sensitive information from the database and sometimes even shut it down or execute arbitrary operating system commands.

public IActionResult Authenticate(string user)
    var isPresent = false;
    string query = "SELECT * FROM Users WHERE Username = '" + user + "'"; // non-compilant
    if (_context.Database.ExecuteSqlCommand(query) > 0)
    {
        isPresent = true;
    }
    return Content(isPresent ? "success" : "fail");
}

Fix recommendation

The ideal and preferred solution is to rely on prepared statements rather than string concatenation, which ensures that user-provided data will be properly escaped. Another solution is to validate every parameter used to build the query. This can be achieved by transforming string values to primitive types or by validating them against a white list of accepted values.

public IActionResult Authenticate(string user)
{
    var isPresent = false;
    var query = "SELECT * FROM Users WHERE Username = {0}"; // Safe
    if (_context.Database.ExecuteSqlCommand(query, user) > 0)
    {
        isPresent = true;
    }
    return Content(isPresent ? "success" : "fail");
}
```

H SQL Injection - Potentially hazardous query detected: variable substitution in-line with query text

Cause

Using variables within the string text of a query is a dangerous practice.
Any data which is user-controlled can be injected with malicious payloads to perform SQL Injection attacks if the query is built with user data.

$last_name=$_GET['last_name']
mysqli_query($con,"DELETE FROM employee WHERE LastName=$last_name ");

Fix recommendation

The best defense against SQL Injection attacks are prepared statements. Using prepared statements allows the DB server to precompile the statement itself and assign the values to the arguments in a way that avoids the attack vector entirely. In PHP there are two primary prepared statement objects:

* PDO: The PDO library offers support for virtually all DBs in the market which PHP supports in a completely abstracted non-DB vendor-specific way.

* MySQLi: The MySQLi extension offers prepared statement support specific to MySQL.

If prepared statements cannot be used, alternate defense mechanisms must be employed.

Some or all of the following techniques may be needed to protect the system from this attack vector:

* Use sprintf if numbers are involved to completely remove any non-digit from the query.

* Use the specific escape functions available to the specific DB:

* [1] mysql_real_escape_string

* [2] sqlite_escape_string

* Whitelist the user-supplied data against known expected and allowed values whenever possible.

* DO NOT trust addSlashes as it is insufficient protection for most production level cases.

$last_name=$_GET['last_name']
$stmt = $dbh->prepare ("DELETE FROM employee WHERE LastName=:last_name");
$stmt -> bindParam(':last_name', $last_name);
$stmt -> execute();
...
$stmt = $dbConnection->prepare("DELETE FROM employee WHERE LastName=?");
$stmt->bind_param('s', $last_name);
$stmt->execute();
```

H Validation Required - HTTP request validation is disabled

Cause

Request validation is a feature in ASP.Net to validate all request parameters and determine whether they contain potentially dangerous content. The 'ValidateInput' attribute can enable or disable input validation at the controller level or any action method.
The following example shows how to disable ValidateInput at the method action level:

public class MyController : Controller
{
    [HttpPost]
    [ValidateInput(false)]
    public ActionResult processData(string input)
    {
        return getResult(input);
    }
}
```

Fix recommendation

It is always safe to enable request validation even if other checks to prevent XSS attacks are in place.

public class MyController : Controller
{
    [HttpPost]
    [ValidateInput(true)] //This line can be removed if the ValidateInput is enabled by default in the project.
    public ActionResult processData(string input)
    {
        return getResult(input);
    }

In some cases, you may need to accept input from the user which contains HTML markup. However, disabling validation at the controller or action level is dangerous since this allows the HTML input for all the properties. To allow HTML input for a single property, you should use the 'AllowHtml' attribute.

Request validation does not guarantee every type of invalid input will be caught. An additional mechanism should in place to protect from all kinds of cross-site scripting. Any string input that is returned to the client should be encoded using an appropriate method, such as those provided via AntiXssEncoder.
